

World Languages and Cultures (BA): Asian Language Concentration

Students in Arabic Studies will acquire skills to effectively communicate in Arabic using both spoken and written forms of the language. Interdisciplinary study will build confidence and enable students to interact with diverse populations in the Middle East appropriately. In addition, students will develop important cultural competency in the Middle East, with many completing study abroad programs in the region.

All the general requirements for the Bachelor of Arts degree must be met. The degree designation is B.A. in World Languages and Cultures with a concentration in Arabic Studies.

Career Opportunities

The expansion of international relations makes the knowledge of world languages a critical need for today's professional. The student of world languages is not limited to teaching, translating or interpreting. There are careers in politics, diplomacy, commerce, business, agriculture, science, and research in which a thorough knowledge of world languages and cultures is crucial for success. The demand for multilingual personnel extends to all fields of human enterprise and will continue to grow in the coming years.
