Fashion and Textile Management (BS): Brand Management and Marketing Concentration

Think of a traditional business and marketing degree with an additional layer of fashion industry expertise and connections, and you have an idea of our brand management and marketing (https://textiles.ncsu.edu/academics/undergraduate/brand-management-and-marketing/) (BMM) program. BMM is one of two concentrations students majoring in Fashion and Textile Management can choose to focus on during their time at the Wilson College of Textiles.

In this concentration, you'll gain applied knowledge of everything needed to work on the business side of fashion, from marketing and consumer trends, to buying and merchandising.

Career Opportunities

You'll find BMM alumni anywhere strategic business thinking is required and industry knowledge is valued, whether that's a marketing group or in house for a retailer.

Bloomingdales, Tiffany & Co., Sephora, Amazon-Europe and Dick's Sporting Goods are just some of the household names hiring our Wolfpack to do everything from choosing what products they should sell to how they'll arrive at a warehouse and the best way to market them to potential customers.

Career Titles

- Retail Buyer Assistant/Manager/Director: Plan and execute buying activities for retail or manufacturing organizations. Help decide what clothes, accessories, footwear and other items they sell.
- Marketing Assistant/Associate/Manager: Plan, execute and evaluate marketing strategies for businesses. This can include creative activities such as designing advertising or promotional campaigns, planning special events and/or providing input into product development.
- Marketing Research Analyst/Consultant: Provide market intelligence for clients that are usually textile/apparel brands or retailers as well as related organizations. Design, analyze and interpret marketing data to help clients achieve their marketing goals.
- Product Manager/Product Line Planner: Coordinate buying, transporting and distributing products in apparel and related companies. Focus on product planning that meets the needs of consumers based on the company's strategy. Because new products are constantly being developed for apparel markets the need for product managers continues to be strong.

- 4 Fashion and Textile Management (BS): Brand Management and Marketing Concentration
 - Sourcing/Supply Chain Analyst/Coordinator/Manager: Manage one or more of the functions required to transport raw materials and finished products from factories to the consumer in a timely manner.
 - Digital Media Coordinator: Oversees production of all digital content used in a brand's marketing and advertising strategy.
